Justice League

Know your rights. Claim them.

The rights-and-justice game for ages 15-18. It turns everything the curriculum stands for, safety, consent, equality, dignity, into power a teen can use: their rights, the laws that protect them, and the real, practical ways to get help and justice. It translates intimidating law into plain language and demystifies how to report and seek redress, and it is explicit that it is educational, not legal advice, pointing toward real authorities and free legal aid. Seven mechanics, 22 choice-and-voice moments, zero "tap the right card". Scorecard: passed.

Know your rights. Claim them.

Justice League hands near-adults the knowledge that turns everything they've learned about safety, consent, equality and dignity into power they can actually use: their rights, the laws that protect them, and the real, practical ways to get help and justice. Where Defenders of the Body (g20) first introduced rights and POCSO to younger children, this gives older teens the grown-up, actionable version. Its premise is empowerment through knowledge: a person who knows their rights and how to claim them is far harder to exploit and far better able to help others. It translates intimidating law into plain language, demystifies redress, and is explicit that it is educational rather than legal advice, pointing toward real authorities and free legal aid for real situations. New v2 build.

Knowledge is the superpower. Many young people quietly believe rights are for adults, the powerful, or 'other people'. The truth: every person, including every teen, holds rights to equality, dignity, education, safety and protection, guaranteed by the Constitution and by law, and there are real routes to claim them. Knowing your rights and how to claim them makes you far harder to exploit, and far better able to help others.

Rights, made usable.

From the Chapter 5 personas (15-18). Near-adults stepping into a world of work, online life and independence, where knowing your rights and the routes to justice is genuine protection, for themselves and others.

PERSONA	WHAT THEY NEED HERE	THE MECHANIC THAT SERVES IT
Every teen	To know their rights are real and theirs, in plain language.	strike-rewrite + match: rights for all.
Sneha, 17	To use real redress, harassment committees, helplines, the law.	branch + sort: get justice.
Arjun, 17	To ask for help and apply rights to real situations.	role-play + spot: rights in action.
The Counsellor	To route any live danger to real authorities and free legal aid.	match + branch: the routes & limits.

Why this works (the evidence). Every person, including every child and teen, holds rights guaranteed by the Constitution and law, and rights aren't a favour for the lucky few. Key Indian laws protect young people in plain terms (POCSO and the age of consent 18; the POSH Act; the Prohibition of Child Marriage Act; the DV Act, Dowry Act and BNS; cyber-law), and there are real routes to justice: a trusted adult, the police (an FIR is mandatory for a serious offence, and a Zero FIR can be filed at any station), school/college Internal Committees, Child Welfare Committees, and free legal aid through NALSA for anyone who can't afford a lawyer. The game is educational, not legal advice, and always points to real help.

Seven moves, led by claiming a right.

It's a rights-and-justice game, so branch leads (apply a right, choose the right redress route), with match linking rights, laws and routes and strike-rewrite clearing the 'not for me' myths. Mechanics rotate; the same one never runs twice in a row.

MECHANIC	THE YOUNG PERSON DOES	EMBODIES	N
branch (claim it) signature	Applies a right to a real situation and picks the safe redress route.	Rights in action.	19
reflect	Internalises that rights are theirs and the routes are reachable.	Self-efficacy.	18
sort	Sorts a real right vs not; a real route vs not; accurate vs myth.	The line.	15
match	Pairs a right to its meaning; a law to a harm; a need to a helpline.	Connections.	13
strike-rewrite	Busts a myth ("rights aren't for me"; "the police can refuse").	Conceptual change.	12
spot	Spots the rights violation, or the appropriate, safe response.	Reading the room.	4
role-play (voice)	Asks for help; reassures a friend of their right to report.	Voice; self-advocacy.	3

22 of 84 moments are branch or role-play. Binary "tap the right answer": 0%.

The two-test, passed.

Is it fun?

Game feel is empowering and clarifying, the satisfaction of finally understanding the system. The "you have a right to this" reveal is a genuine power-up feeling; the path-to-justice unlocking step by step makes redress feel reachable; and plain-language cards that make a scary law suddenly make sense are quietly thrilling. The system is shown as navigable, never as intimidating courtroom drama, with real help always signposted.

Is it teaching?

Yes: the fundamental and child rights every teen holds; the key laws that protect them, in plain language; how to access justice and redress (who to tell, how to complain or file an FIR, the committees, helplines, and free legal aid); how to apply rights to real situations; and where to turn for help, always within the honest frame that this is educational, not legal advice.

The belief it moves. From "rights are for adults and the powerful; the law isn't for someone like me; you can't get justice without money; the police can just refuse you" → "rights are yours; the law protects you; free legal aid exists; and for a serious offence an FIR is mandatory, with real routes to claim it all."

Built, not bolted on.

What this game flips.

MYTH (UN ERASES)	TRUTH (RE WRITES)	BASIS
Rights are for adults and the powerful, not me.	Every person, including every teen, holds rights; they aren't a favour for the lucky few.	Rights for all.
You have to earn your rights.	Rights aren't earned or granted; you hold them simply as a person.	Inherent rights.
The law is too complicated for a teenager.	The core protections can be put in plain language anyone can use.	Plain language.
The police can just refuse to register your complaint.	For a serious offence an FIR is mandatory; a Zero FIR can be filed at any station.	FIR (Lalita Kumari).
You can't get justice without money for a lawyer.	Free legal aid is available to those who can't afford one (NALSA, 15100).	Free legal aid.
Marrying off a minor is just a family matter.	The law sets a minimum marriage age; child marriage can be reported and prevented.	Child Marriage Act.
This can tell me exactly what to do in my legal case.	It's educational, not legal advice; real cases need qualified, free help.	Educational frame.
Knowing your rights makes no difference.	It changes what you accept, how you act, and your ability to help others.	Knowledge is power.

The micro-loop.

1. Present. Sam presents a right, a law, or a real-life situation.
2. Learn & apply. The young person learns it and applies it to a scenario (spot the violation, pick the route).
3. Claim it. They choose the appropriate, safe redress route (branch).
4. The flip. UN busts 'rights aren't for someone like me'; RE shows the right and the route to claim it.
5. Toolkit & help. A reference card of rights, laws and helplines; live danger routes straight to help.
6. Sticker. The Rights badge; GameDone records once.

Signature surface: the "you have a right to this" reveal and the unlocking path-to-justice. It completes the rights arc from Defenders of the Body (g20), arms the changemakers of Change Makers (g34) and the upstanders of Stand Up (g27), and underwrites the consent law of Mutual (g31).

Empowering, accurate, honest.

- Educational, not legal advice. Clearly stated throughout; for real situations the game points to trusted adults, authorities and free legal aid.
- Legally accurate & current. All law content must be expert-reviewed, localised, and updated as laws change, a hard requirement.
- Empowering, not alarming. Laws are framed as protection; the system is shown as navigable, with help always at hand.
- Live-danger routing. If a player signals a current rights violation or danger, the anonymous Q&A routes them straight to the right helpline and trusted adults (POCSO-aware).
- No false guarantees. It explains rights and routes honestly, without promising specific outcomes.
- Rights come with respect. Claiming your rights means respecting everyone else's the same.
- Access & privacy. Audio, offline, low-end build; nothing a young person asks about their rights is ever associated with them (DPDP-aligned).

Routes to justice & helplines (India). A trusted adult / teacher / counsellor · the police (an FIR is mandatory for a serious offence; a Zero FIR can be filed at any station) · a school/college Internal Committee · a Child Welfare Committee · free legal aid via NALSA / the Legal Services Authorities (15100). Helplines: Childline 1098 · Women 181 · women-in-distress 1091 · emergency 112 · cybercrime 1930. Educational only, not legal advice.

v2 schema, scorecard-gated.

- v2 mechanic-embodiment schema. type + typed payload; the branch claim-it move leads, with match linking rights/laws/routes.
- Legal accuracy is a hard requirement. All law content (POCSO, POSH, PCMA, DV/BNS, FIR rules, free legal aid) is flagged for expert legal review, localisation and keeping current; the game states it is educational, not advice.
- Fact-checked content. Mandatory FIR / Zero FIR (Lalita Kumari), free legal aid (NALSA / Article 39A, 15100), the commissions and helplines verified this build; re-verify on any legal change.
- Scorecard-gated. Passed all eight checks (7 mechanics, top mechanic at 23%, 0% binary, 22 autonomy, 12 UN→RE, 4 personas, 100% completeness). Re-run score_gdd.py on any edit.
- Help-resource hook. Live danger routes via the shared "get help" component (112 / 1098 / 181 / 1930 / trusted adult / free legal aid).
- Tracked. build_gate.py finalize advances g35 to v2 PASS only after order, read, score, audit and artifact gates pass.

Ethics contracts (never traded for engagement): empowering & accurate; educational, NOT legal advice; legally current & expert-reviewed; no false guarantees; live-danger routing; rights come with respect; made-for-India.

Why this works.

- Knowledge is the first protection. Because a person who knows their rights and how to claim them is far harder to exploit, plain-language rights literacy is genuine, practical self-protection, and the ability to help others.
- Routes make rights real. Since a right is useless without knowing how to claim it, demystifying the actual path, trusted adult, FIR, committees, free legal aid, is what turns an abstract guarantee into something a teen can use.
- Honesty builds trust and safety. Because no honest guide can promise outcomes, framing the game as educational-not-advice, pointing to real authorities and free legal aid, and routing live danger to help, is what makes rights education both trustworthy and safe.
