Consent, For Real

An enthusiastic, ongoing yes

The first node of the adult journey (ages 18-22, College) and the grown-up completion of the consent thread. It takes the standard a teen learned in Mutual and applies it to the messier realities of adult life: parties and alcohol, hook-ups and relationships, apps and hostel rooms. Consent as an enthusiastic, ongoing, freely-given, revocable yes between equals, plus how to recognise and support survivors of assault, without shame and without blame. Even-handed, trauma-aware, non-graphic. Seven mechanics, 31 choice-and-voice moments, zero "tap the right card". Scorecard: passed.

Consent isn't a box you tick.

Consent, For Real opens Chapter 6 (College, 18-22) and completes the consent thread for adult life. Where Mutual (g31) gave teens the standard, this applies it to the realities adults actually meet: drinks at a party, a date, a relationship, a message thread, a hostel room. It teaches consent as an enthusiastic, ongoing, freely-given, revocable, sober-enough yes between equals, and it equips young adults to recognise coercion and to support a survivor of assault, without shame and without blame. It is even-handed across genders, trauma-aware and strictly non-graphic. New v2 build, and the first node of the adult layer.

Enthusiasm is the bar. An ongoing, freely-given yes, not the absence of a no, not a worn-down maybe. Adult life adds the parts a teen lesson can't fully cover: alcohol and incapacity (a drunk, high, asleep or incapacitated person cannot consent, full stop), coercion and power dynamics, and what to do when someone you know is harmed. The positive core stays the same, a real, eager yes is what makes intimacy good, and consent is the best part of it.

The adult is in the room now.

From the Chapter 6 personas (18-22). No parent holding the phone, no syllabus, just a young adult in a new city meeting consent, dating and the rest for the first time, for real. It must serve the college cast and the non-college majority alike, and be even-handed across every gender.

PERSONA	WHAT THEY NEED HERE	THE MECHANIC THAT SERVES IT
Ananya, 19	Consent in real adult settings: alcohol, a room, the right to change her mind any time.	branch + role-play : real situations.
Rohan, 20	A confident, respectful masculinity, and that men can be harmed too.	strike-rewrite : bust the myths.
Meena, 20	To know help exists even with no warden or counsellor, offline.	match + sort : routes & helplines.
Dr. Mehta (counsellor)	Students who can support a survivor well and signpost real help.	role-play + branch : after harm.

Why this works (the evidence). Affirmative consent is a conscious, voluntary, mutual and enthusiastic agreement that can be withdrawn at any time, not the absence of a no. Alcohol and drugs change everything: someone drunk, high, asleep or otherwise incapacitated cannot consent, and 'they didn't resist' is never consent. The myths that excuse harm ('they didn't say no', 'we're together so it's assumed', 'they came back to mine', 'they were drunk or dressed for it') are false, and coercion, guilt-trips and power-plays are not consent. Responding to a disclosure is survivor-centred: believe, never blame, ask what they need, respect their choices about reporting, and signpost help. Anyone of any gender can be harmed; male and LGBTQ+ survivors are especially silenced.

Seven moves, led by the real situation.

It's an applied-judgment game, so branch leads (read the cues, choose the consent-first move), with strike-rewrite clearing the myths that excuse harm and role-play giving the player the words, to voice a boundary, and to support a survivor. Mechanics rotate; the same one never runs twice in a row.

MECHANIC	THE YOUNG ADULT DOES	EMBODIES	N
branch (the call) signature	Reads a real adult scene and chooses the consent-first move.	Applied judgment.	21
strike-rewrite	Busts a myth that excuses harm ("they didn't say no").	Conceptual change.	16
sort	Sorts capacity vs not; consent vs coercion; support vs harm.	The line.	14
reflect	Internalises the standard and the survivor-centred basics.	Values.	13
role-play (voice)	Voices a boundary; intervenes; supports a survivor with the right words.	Voice; care.	10
spot	Spots the coercion, the power-play, or who cannot consent.	Reading the room.	6
match	Pairs a need to a helpline; a myth to its truth; a step to why it matters.	Connections.	4 31 of 84 moments are branch or role-play. Binary "tap the right answer": 0%.

The two-test, passed.

Is it engaging?

Game feel is the warmth and clarity of a real, enthusiastic yes, the positive core, and the relief and respect when a boundary is heard instantly. Coercion and "blurred lines" get named and defused, which is satisfying in itself. The tone is adult-to-adult and wry, not earnest or preachy; Sam returns as a level-headed adult peer, never a guide. Nothing is explicit, and Get Help is one tap away.

Is it teaching?

Yes: enthusiastic, ongoing, revocable consent in real adult situations; that alcohol or incapacitation removes the capacity to consent; the difference between persuasion and pressure, and how to spot coercion and power-plays; how to respond to a disclosure of assault supportively and where to point a friend or oneself; and the firm rejection of the myths that blame survivors, even-handed across genders.

The belief it moves. From "they didn't say no, so it was fine; we're together so it's assumed; they were drunk or dressed for it; men can't be harmed; a real friend would force them to report" → "consent is an active, ongoing, sober-enough yes between equals; incapacity means no consent; nothing about clothes or choices implies it; anyone can be harmed; and support means believing, not taking over."

Built, not bolted on.

 RE -> "Consent is an active, willing yes; the absence of a no is not it."

What this game flips.

MYTH (UN ERASES)	TRUTH (RE WRITES)	BASIS
They didn't say no, so it was consent.	Consent is an active, willing yes; the absence of a no is not it.	Active yes.
We're together, so consent is assumed.	A relationship never assumes consent; it's freely given each time.	Each time.
They came back to mine, so they wanted it.	Coming over or kissing is never agreement to anything further.	Every step.
They were dressed for it.	Clothes never imply consent; only a willing yes does.	Clothing.
They didn't resist, so it was fine.	Not resisting is never consent, especially if drunk or frozen.	Capacity / freeze.
Men can't be assaulted.	Anyone of any gender can be harmed, and deserves belief and support.	Even-handed.
If there was no struggle, it wasn't assault.	Freezing is a common, involuntary response; assault doesn't require a fight.	Freeze response.
A real friend would force them to report.	A real friend supports the survivor's own choices, including if and when.	Autonomy.

The micro-loop.

1. Surface. Sam (adult peer) surfaces a real adult scene, a claim, or a moment.
2. Read & choose. The young adult reads the cues and chooses the consent-first move (branch), or finds the words (role-play).
3. The flip. UN busts a myth that excuses harm; RE writes the standard.
4. After harm. If someone is harmed: believe, don't blame, ask what they need, respect their choices, signpost help.
5. Tools & help. A quick consent and support reference; any disclosure routes to support and the right helpline.
6. Sticker. The Consent badge; GameDone records once.

Signature surface: the real-situation read and the survivor-centred response. Survivor-centred, never victim-blaming.

- Never victim-blaming. Responsibility lies only with the person who ignored consent, stated throughout, regardless of what a survivor wore, drank or did.
- Capacity is clear. Incapacitation (alcohol or drugs), sleep or unconsciousness means no consent; no ambiguity.
- Trauma-aware & non-graphic. Realistic but never explicit; a calm mode and an easy exit; the focus is the response and the principle, not detail.
- Even-handed. Anyone of any gender can be harmed or can harm; male and LGBTQ+ survivors, often the most silenced, are believed equally.
- Urgent disclosure routing. Any disclosure routes to support and the right helpline; the anonymous Ask-It carries urgent safeguarding triage.
- Expert-reviewed. Content reviewed by gender-violence, campus-safety and survivor-support specialists.
- Access & privacy. Self-directed, audio, offline, low-end build; the Q&A is on-device and never identity-linked (DPDP-aligned).

Ethics contracts (never traded for engagement): enthusiasm is the bar; capacity is clear; survivor-centred & never victim-blaming; even-handed across genders; trauma-aware & non-graphic; urgent disclosure routing; made-for-India.

Why this works.

- Enthusiasm is protective and positive. Because consent is a conscious, voluntary, mutual yes that can be withdrawn anytime, teaching enthusiasm as the bar both prevents harm and makes intimacy better, not less.
- Capacity is the adult-specific lesson. Since alcohol and incapacitation remove the ability to consent, the plain rule, incapacitated means no consent, and when in doubt you wait, is what carries the teen standard safely into adult life.
- Survivor-centred support changes outcomes. Because survivors most fear disbelief and blame, a response that believes, doesn't blame, asks what they need and respects their choices, while signposting real help, is both the kindest and the most effective.
