

Capstone c6 Standing on My Own

You took the wheel of an adult life.

The Chapter 6 graduation (ages 18-22), the first adult milestone, an independent young adult. A reflective, grown-up sticker-book landing that opens on a young adult at the centre of their own life, revisiting nine big truths across six threads, consent and dating, health and money, mind and worth, equality and rights, as a constellation called Standing on My Own. Nine truths, nine victory laps, zero tests. Scorecard: passed.

The first adult graduation.

Standing on My Own closes Chapter 6 (College, 18-22), the chapter where the player became the adult, no parent in the room, the whole of an independent life now theirs. Like every capstone it consolidates and celebrates, never tests, here revisiting the nine big truths the young adult grew into: consent and dating, their health and money, their mind, their worth, their equality and their rights. The register is grown-up and reflective rather than a party: "you took the wheel of an adult life, and you can drive it."

Why it works. Revisiting the chapter after a gap is spaced retrieval, which consolidates durably; replaying each truth through a fresh mechanic adds the variable-cue boost. As the first adult milestone, the register matures, reflective and earned rather than a child's party, celebrating real-world capability (running your own health, money, relationships and rights) over any grade. So this capstone is proud and grown-up, never a test.

Nine truths, lived for real.

The heart of the capstone: nine stickers rising into a "Standing on My Own" constellation over a young adult's first independent life. Tapping each replays its one big truth, spaced, adult, never graded.

STAR	FROM	THREAD	THE BIG TRUTH IT REPLAYS
consent-real	g44 Consent, For Real	B	Real consent is an enthusiastic, ongoing, freely-given yes between equals; survivors are believed, never blamed.
swipe-smart	g45 Swipe Right?	D	Date safely and treat people like people, not profiles; verify the real ones, and rejection is survivable both ways.
real-relationships	g46 Real Relationships	D	Healthy relationships are built; love expands your world while control shrinks it, and leaving an unsafe one is brave.
own-health	g47 Own Your Health	F	Your health is yours: dual protection, routine check-ups, and confidential, shame-free care.
independence-key	g48 Money & Independence	C	Money is freedom: budget, save, dodge debt traps, and your own income is your safety net.
mind-belonging	g49 Mind & Belonging	C	Leaving home is hard and normal; build belonging, cope healthily, and reaching out for help is the strong move.
find-feet	g52 Find Your Feet	C	No one has it figured out; setbacks are information, not verdicts, and your worth is never your CV.
equal-confident	g50 Equal & Confident	E	Claim your voice, lead from any seat, and be an active ally; equality lifts everyone.
rights-shield	g51 Know Your Rights	G	You have rights at work, in a rented room and online, and real, reachable routes to claim them.

Five reflective beats.

1. Arrive & settle. Lensy: "look at you, standing on your own." The furniture of an independent life switches on around the young adult.
2. Look back. The nine-star constellation; tap each to revisit its truth (consolidate).
3. Play back. Nine light victory laps drawn from the chapter, framed as confident "you've got this" moments, no score, no fail.
4. Reflect & celebrate. Four grown-up prompts (independence without isolation), then the golden star, a certificate and the full sticker book.
5. Preview & share. A bridge into Chapter 7 (Building a Life) and a privacy-respecting, optional share.

Arrival & canvas, verbatim.

arrival: "Lensy: look at you, standing on your own. A year or two ago someone else held the phone; now it's all yours."

canvas: "...a young adult at the centre of their own life... your nine stickers rise into the night as a constellation called Standing on My Own."

Nine victory laps.

Each replays a chapter truth through a different action (variable-cue retrieval), framed as a confident lap. Seven distinct mechanics, including no-fail branches, never the same twice in a row, never scored.

#	FROM	MECHANIC	THE VICTORY LAP
1	all	gallery	The nine-star constellation, tap any star to revisit its truth.
2	g44	swipe	Swipe up for real, freely-given, sober-enough consent.
3	g46	branch	Name control vs love; love expands, control shrinks (no-fail).
4	g48	sort	Sort what builds money-freedom from what's a trap.
5	g49	strike-rewrite	Clear the 'asking for help is weak' myth.
6	g51	match	Match a problem to its redress route (POSH, NALSA, 1930).
7	g50	role-play	Amplify a colleague; claim your voice.
8	g52	strike-rewrite	Clear the big one: your worth isn't your CV.
9	g47	swipe	Swipe up for everything that's yours to own about your health.

Mechanics used: gallery, swipe, branch, sort, strike-rewrite, match, role-play. Tests, scores or buzzers: zero.

You took the wheel.

The four reflections (non-judged, grown-up)

- "Look how far you've come, from needing an adult in the room to being the adult yourself. What feels most different about standing on your own now?"
- "Which idea will you carry deepest into your independent life?"
- "Standing on your own doesn't mean doing it all alone, does it feel okay to be independent and still lean on people?"
- "As your own adult now, what are you most ready for?"

Every option is affirmed; the focus is capability, self-trust and independence-without-isolation, not a right answer, the grown-up way to mark this milestone.

The graduation

Glyph. The golden standing-on-my-own-star crowns the constellation.

Certificate. "...You are Standing on My Own, a genuinely independent young adult. You live consent as mutual and respect, you build healthy relationships and can leave an unhealthy one, you own your health, handle your money and guard your independence, you look after your mind and reach for help as a strength, you hold your worth apart from your CV, you claim your voice and act as an ally, and you know your rights. You took the wheel of an adult life, and you can drive it."

Sticker book. All nine Chapter 6 stickers shine, crowned by the golden star, with every chapter sticker since age 4 glowing beneath.

Preview & share (privacy-first). Next: Chapter 7, Building a Life (22 onward), partnerships, a home and shared money, and the choices about whether and when to start a family, built on the independence just earned. And, because this is the young adult's own, the share is their call: "tell someone you trust one thing you're proud of growing into, or keep it for yourself, that's completely okay too."

How it ships.

- Schema. Capstone v1 (type "capstone"): arrival, canvasPayoff, threadsRecapped, recap[], playback[], reflect[], celebration, preview, share. Data file: SwipeEd — Capstone c6 Standing on My Own — Landing.json.
- Gate. Passed score_capstone.py on all eleven checks, including the literal "no test/score language" guard (which caught and forced a kinder rewrite of two playback lines), and the consistency audit (recap = all nine chapter lessons, threads B/C/D/E/F/G, playback from chapter nodes).
- gameId. capstone-ch6 — node.game === GameDone key === registry id.
- Gating. "—" : never gated; reached by completing the Chapter 6 spine.
- Reuse. Every truth and victory lap is pulled from the chapter's existing game libraries; no new content.
- Tracked. build_gate.py finalize marks c6 capstone ✓ only after order, read, score, audit and artifact gates pass.
- Reward. Sticker economy only; no coins, streaks or leaderboards.

The capstone promise. Consolidate the chapter's truths through spaced, varied, joyful retrieval; crown it with a grown-up celebration of real independence; never make a young adult feel judged. With c6, Chapter 6 is sealed and the first adult milestone is reached; Building a Life (Chapter 7) lies ahead.

Research basis: spaced retrieval practice & variable-cue retrieval; the reflective adult-milestone register (capability and autonomy over grades). Next: Chapter 7, Building a Life, capstone c7.
